SIMPLE DECEPTION

MNÍŠEK, CZECH REPUBLIC

The property, located on a mountain ridge in the tiny hamlet of Mníšek in the Ore Mountains, just near the German border, offers a one-of-a-kind panoramic view.

The deceptively simple house is of a traditional type, consisting of two floors with a gabled roof. Thanks to the property's excellent orientation, the living spaces open up to the surrounding vistas while also letting in sunlight. The local access road follows the property's northern border, with unique stunning views to the south.

The expansive main living room is lined with large floor-to-ceiling windows. The short summer season inspired the addition of a covered terrace in the central part of the southwestern façade that can be accessed from the living and dining rooms. Thanks to a large sliding window, the space can be permanently opened during the warm season. It has become the heart of the house. A single-flight staircase next to the winter garden leads to the upper floor.

While the interior is characterized by the use of wood and light colors, the building's exterior is clad in the dark wooden planks typical for this region. The black color is achieved in an environmentally friendly manner, by heating the wood and without the use of synthetic varnish. The roof covering is traditional ceramic roof tiles, with a modern gray glaze and a simple shape.

“Thanks to the property’s excellent orientation, the living spaces open up to the surrounding vistas.”
